Welcome to

Leveraging PG&E's Supplier Code of Conduct for Operational Success.

This course reviews all aspects of PG&E's Supplier Code of Conduct, and explains how to comply with the code whether or not you are a PG&E supplier.

PG&E is one of the largest natural gas and electric companies in the United States.

Approximately 23,000 PG&E employees help to transmit and deliver energy to about 16 million people in Northern and Central California.

To provide services to customers,

PG&E relies on a diverse team of employees, plus contractors, consultants, and suppliers which PG&E collectively refers to as suppliers.

As a business owner, you probably know that working as a supplier with large corporations like PG&E can involve complying with important requirements and maintaining related documentation.

This course expands on these responsibilities by exploring PG&E's Supplier Code of Conduct which guides all aspects of suppliers' interactions with the community, the environment, and within PG&E.

Let's hear directly from Brooke Reilly,

Vice President, Supply Chain and Chief Procurement Officer of PG&E, who will introduce the code.

Hello, my name is Brooke Reilly,

Vice President of Supply Chain and Chief Procurement Officer at PG&E.

I am pleased you're here to take this course to learn about PG&E's Supplier Code of Conduct.

By clicking on this course and encouraging your coworkers to do the same, you are demonstrating your commitment to ethical business conduct that is compliant with applicable laws, regulations, and company policies.

PG&E's Supplier Code of Conduct sets the principles and standards of conduct that PG&E expects from its suppliers.

We have created this course to help you understand the contents of the code.

This course includes a workbook that will help you document code compliance including identifying your top risks and establishing risk mitigation practices.

This workbook will also help you respond to customers like PG&E who care about compliance.

Emphasizing PG&E's code of conduct to our coworkers and our suppliers is how PG&E will deliver on one of our stance:

everyone and everything is always safe.

If you are a PG&E supplier, a potential supplier, or a business that is curious about this course, we commend you for understanding that ethics and compliance is the foundation of successful business.

I hope you find the course helps you better understand PG&E's code of conduct and is useful in meeting your customer's expectations of compliance.

Even if you are not currently a supplier to PG&E, understanding the Supplier Code of Conduct will help you recognize the ethics, labor, health and safety, environmental, and general administration practices that are so important to PG&E and many other companies.

This course is presented
