

Welcome to Preparing for Emergencies

By Building An Illness and Injury Prevention Plan, brought to you by the Technical Assistance Program at Pacific Gas and Electric.

PG&E is passionate about safety and even more committed to ensuring diverse suppliers are proven and prepared to serve in the corporate supply chain.

My name is Pamela Isom, president/CEO of In Case of Emergency.

And for the past 21 years, we've had the distinct honor to support corporations across the U.S.

with their emergency response planning,

training, and equipment.

As you're all aware, an emergency or natural disaster

can impact your business,

your customers and their customers.

This course will ensure your company does not pose a risk to PG&E's supply chain or any corporation's supply chain.

By having an illness and injury prevention plan,

you will have the competitive advantage,

tools and action steps in case of emergency.
